Dan. I am a (used to be?) guitar player in a band from California. We are looking to find other members so that we can start playing shows and hopefully record some original music. I'd like to think that we would be a nice upgrade over the current NAP SOB trio, but I couldn't tell you if anyone wants me to say that or not. If you are open to it, let me know. I have a lot of music I'd love to share. Our contact information is on our band's website: Feel free to let me know if you are interested in us or if you are open to meeting up at a mutual place. Design pattern to use with have a pattern which defines a chain of methods/properties I have the following design I need to improve. class

StringCache { private T _value; public T
this[string key] { get { return _value; } set { _value = value; } } public StringCache(T value)
{ _value = value; } }

The code above represents a cache that gets cache the values for String properties. I have a class that contains other classes and I use this class to cache the values.

class ValueCache { private T _value;
public T this[string key] { get { return _value; }
set { _value = value; } } public ValueCache(T value) { _value = value; } }

I have other similar classes that cache the property values for other objects of the same type. public class PropertyCache { private StringCache _cache;

public PropertyCache(StringCache cache) { _cache = cache; } public T this[string key] { get { return _cache[key]; } set { _cache[key] = value; } } public T GetPropertyValue(
